Wendell the wallaby goes AWOL

MISSING A wallaby that took it on the lam after high winds knocked over his enclosure at an area zoo on Tuesday night has been spotted 70 kilometres away, but was still eluding capture yesterday.

Several animals escaped from Saunders Country Critters and Garden Centre south of Ottawa after a blizzard knocked down fencing at the zoo.

"I panicked really because I didn't know how many animals were out," said owner Gary Saunders.

One kangaroo and four wallabies escaped. All were found except for Wendell, a Bennett wallaby, who is about 2.5 feet tall with brown fur. He was seen near Athens, 70 kilometres from where he disappeared.

The Saunders ask anyone who sees Wendell to try to get him into a pillow case or blanket.

"Grab him by the base of the tail — then you can control him," said Gary's wife, Carla. "We want him home."

City hall keen on Baird in transport

New minister seen as eager to get light rail train rolling

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

The first telephone call John Baird made after being appointed Canada's new minister of Transportation and Infrastructure yesterday was to the chair of Ottawa's transit committee.

"I indicated my strong desire to constructively work in co-operation with the city on their transit plan," Baird said yesterday of his conversation with city Coun. Alex Cullen, the transit chair. "We want to be there to play a big part, financially."

That the environment-turned-transportation minister immediately took time to reassure Ottawa about its $3.8-billion rapid transit light rail plan bodes well, Cullen said.

"He's anxious to see shovels in the ground. It sounds to me like we have a friend in court in the Harper cabinet," said Cullen, who added that Baird told him he's waiting to see Ottawa's final proposal and is willing to expedite the required federal approvals.

Mayor Larry O'Brien hailed the appointment of a city MP to the high-profile portfolio as "good news" for a city that's developing a large transit network and that also needs repairs to its infrastructure, ranging from roads to sewers.

"He's been aware of the transit file in Ottawa for a long time. He, as well as any minister of the Crown, knows how important this is for the city," said O'Brien. "I'm certain we will get a fair hearing from the minister."

Alta Vista Coun. Peter Hume (planning and environment chair) said Baird's quick response to the Ottawa River pollution issue shows that the minister can make things happen.

"Over the last year we've forged a strong working relationship with Minister Baird on housing, homelessness, and on the Ottawa River and we have to continue to use that partnership to the betterment of Ottawa."

"He is in the best possible decision-making position," said Coun. Maria McRae, chair of the transportation committee.

"He first-hand knows that municipalities are going to need help. I believe that he is going to show strong leadership in this role."

Does time heal all transit wounds?

- John Baird has not always been so well received by the city in regards to the local transit file.

In October 2006, as Treasury Board president, he reviewed Ottawa's previous light rail contract in the midst of a municipal election and discovered the agreement provided a cancellation deadline of December. He withheld $200 million in federal funding until after the November municipal election, to give the incoming council a chance to vote on the plan.

The newly elected council, led by new Mayor Larry O'Brien, cancelled the original contract and started work on a new light rail plan.

Record number of women in cabinet

TORIES The federal cabinet got a more feminine touch after a higher proportion of women than ever before joined the upper ranks of government yesterday.

The shuffle put a total of 11 women into the 38-member cabinet — eight as full ministers and three as junior ministers — including three rookie members of parliament given senior portfolios.

"It's a tremendous turnaround from seven women in 2006," said Francoise Gagnon, national director for Equal Voice, which promotes boosting the number of women in public office.

To beat

- Francoise Gagnon with Equal Voice said Harper still falls short of Quebec Premier Jean Charest's 50 per cent provincial record for the swearing-in of women.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper has now appointed the largest proportion — 29 per cent — of women to cabinet in Canadian history.

Paul Martin held the previous record after appointing 11 women to his 39-member cabinet, or 28 per cent, in 2003.

Female ministers include Lisa Raitt, who becomes minister of natural resources; Leona Aglukkaq is health minister; Gail Shea is minister of fisheries and oceans; Lynn Yelich becomes minister of state for western economic diversification; Josée Verner is minister of intergovernmental affairs; Rona Ambrose is labour minister; Diane Finley is minister of human resources and skills development; Bev Oda remains minister of international co-operation; Diane Ablonczy remains minister of state for small business and tourism; and Marjorie LeBreton stays on as government senate leader.

Short-staffing led to dosage error

TRACEY TONG
tracey.tong@metronews.ca

An Ottawa Hospital department was short-staffed by about half at the time that a calculation error was made that caused hundreds of cancer patients to receive lower than required radiation doses over three years.

A report by Cancer Care Ontario, ordered by the hospital, found the error occurred after an orthovoltage radiation treatment unit was moved from the General campus to the Civic campus of the Ottawa Cancer Centre in November 2004.

It resulted in 326 skin cancer patients receiving up to 17 per cent lower-than-needed doses of radiation.

Hospital staff didn't discover the error for three years. There were no reported overdoses.

At the time of the incident, staffing levels were down due to maternity leave and illnesses, said Dr. Brenda Clark, head of the department of medical physics.

"We were seriously understaffed," she said.

There were up to seven physicists at the time of the incident, compared to 14 now, she said.

The report makes two recommendations — to develop local staffing standards for medical physics support that reflect the complexity of radiation therapy, and to establish a threshold where medical physics staffing falls below that level.

The hospital has acted on both recommendations, said Dr. Jeff Turnbull, the hospital's chief of staff.

"Today, Ottawa Hospital medical physics staffing levels exceed currently accepted standards," Turnbull said.

The individual who made the error on the machine, whom Turnbull called "very competent," has since retired.

Turnbull doesn't expect any adverse results for patients.

"These are low-grade tumors that grow very slowly," he said.

"We're sorry this happened, but … the likelihood of anyone being affected is extremely low."

The patients will be seen twice a year for five years, compared to the usual once-a-year consultation.

Patient patients

- Although patients in a few instances were upset about the error, most were forgiving and understanding, said head of radiation and oncology, Dr. Laval Grimard.

Youth urged by experts to ensure work safety

LABOUR Young employees must learn to speak up about safety concerns at work since they are the age group most likely to get hurt on the job, a health and safety conference in Ottawa heard yesterday.

The safety of new and young employees was the focus of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association's annual conference, which also called on employers to do more to protect the well-being of their employees.

According to figures, young workers are five times more likely to be injured in their first four weeks of a new job.

Michael Abrome, a representative for the association, says to prevent workplace injuries, young workers must know the responsibilities of the job and be familiar with the proper way to use equipment and protective gear.

"The employer, realizing that, really must take the extra care and mentoring and coaching for young workers to ensure that they are, in fact, working properly," said Abrome.

A quilt adorned with the faces of workers killed or injured on the job was on display, as a reminder of the potential consequences of working in industry.

Landmark rider almost missed bus

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

Kylee Mackay nearly missed her bus yesterday — just as she was crossing the street to the stop, it started pulling away.

But driver Stephen Boileau stopped for her and brought her to Tunney's Pasture where — unbeknownst to them both — a contingent of officials were waiting to welcome Mackay as the Transitway's 1.5 billionth rider.

"There were only three other people on the bus with me and we saw this huge group and I actually thought it was a strike," said Mackay, who rides the Transitway daily to her work at the downtown CBC offices.

As Mackay stepped off, Mayor Larry O'Brien greeted her and presented her with a plaque and one year's worth of free transit passes in honour of her landmark status during 25th anniversary celebrations for the Transitway.

Her selection as the 1.5 billionth rider was partly luck of the draw, but a lot of statistics and math went into the timing, said Transit Services Director Alain Mercier.

OC Transpo measures ridership based on sales and passenger counts — 20 per cent of buses are equipped with infrared detectors that count passengers as they embark.

Planners had been tracking volume and predicted the date and time that ridership would surpass 1.5 billion.

"We knew today would likely be the day, based on polling of ridership, so we used the math to predict that at this time would be the 1.5 billionth rider," he said.

It took the Transitway 10 years to mark its first 500 million riders, then another 15 years to get a billion more. Based on current ridership of 100 million annually, it should take five years to hit two billion.

City job cuts mean fewer services: Union

tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

Council can't whitewash the fact that service reductions will follow proposed job cuts at city hall, the leader of the union that represents municipal employees said yesterday.

Paul Moist, national president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), said that in economic downturns there is an increased demand on public services and Ottawa must be upfront about how job cuts would impact residents.

"If the price tag of a tax freeze or a one per cent tax hike is the elimination of this or that service, our polling tells us that during recessionary times there will be a request for more services, not less," he said.

Moist said the union is prepared to battle to keep the 500 jobs targeted for elimination.

"If council is serious about providing services to the citizens with 500 less employees in some budgetary chopping exercise, we represent those employees and we're going to fight hard to keep them working."

"Our polling tells us that during recessionary times there will be a request for more services, not less."
Paul Moist, national CUPE president

But Mayor Larry O'Brien said the city has been up front about its efforts to reduce city spending, saying, "The citizens want, very clearly, a more effective municipal government.

"Is this the right time to cut back on services that aren't necessarily meeting the needs of the city? I think so," he said. "Is it time to find more effective ways of managing our municipal government? I think so."

Earlier this year, Ottawa announced 100 vacant positions would not be filled, but the city has yet to cut jobs. The president of CUPE Local 503, Brian Madden, said he has requested to see where those positions were cut from and what future reductions are proposed.

Downturn hits food banks

Canada's food banks may have a harder time feeding the poor this winter as the global economic crisis leads major companies to slash donations, the nation's food bank association said yesterday. Poverty groups urge 'aggressive' action

Activists concerned that poverty and housing issues will be pushed to the backburner during the economic downturn found little solace in Diane Finley's return as the federal minister responsible for the portfolio.

"Those of us working in the field are predicting a massive influx of homeless people." Cathy Crowe, street nurse

"I'm not expecting the current government in the current economic situation, with all the sort of signals they've been sending, to come out with any particularly bold or innovative ideas ... to address the issues that we're concerned with," said Rob Rainer, executive director of the National Anti-Poverty Organization.

Finley was appointed minister of human resources and skills development yesterday, a role she held in 2006 before her appointment as immigration minister.

Street nurse Cathy Crowe said the challenges facing the poor will become more acute as the economy worsens, and predicted Finley will have her work cut out for her.

"I think she's going to be in a lot of trouble ... Those of us working in the field are predicting a massive influx of homeless people in all the major cities and rural areas given the recession and the plant closures and what's going on with the economy," Crowe said.

Michael Shapcott, a senior fellow at the Toronto-based Wellesley Institute, recalled poverty and housing activists having a hard time with Finley the last time around.

"We're very concerned that the minister needs to take a much more aggressive role in terms of making sure that the investments that are needed are in place."

Climate change to affect creatures differently: Report

SCIENCE Climate change is likely to disrupt food chains by favouring animals with short lifespans over bigger rivals that are worse at tolerating temperature swings, Canadian and German scientists said yesterday.

The researchers said that studies of the physical characteristics of animals showed that all have widely differing "thermal windows" — a range of temperatures in which they best feed, grow and reproduce. That meant that climate change would not affect all equally.

"Climate change will favour species with wide thermal windows, short lifespans, and a large gene pool amongst its population," the journal Science said of the findings.

Manitoba, Air Canada to meet in court
The Manitoba government is taking Air Canada to court over job cuts in Winnipeg. The province says the airline appears to be breaking the law by closing the city's flight attendant base, a move that will affect about 145 people. CBC NEWS ONLINE

WELFARE COSTS The Ontario government will spend the next decade taking back welfare costs dumped on cities and towns in the 1990s, but municipalities remain saddled with hefty social housing costs. Sources told Torstar News Service that many of the welfare costs downloaded on municipalities by former Progressive Conservative premier Mike Harris would be slowly moved back to the provincial realm.

TSB releases report into Gainey death

JENNIFER TAPLIN
for Metro Canada

Deciding to set sail with a storm approaching, and a lack of safety nets were just two of the contributing factors in Laura Gainey's death.

The final report by the Transportation Safety Board released yesterday examined how Gainey was swept off the deck of the Picton Castle on Dec. 8, 2006.

"We came to the conclusion that with strong safety measures in place, loss of life can be avoided," said Paul van den Berg, the investigator in charge.

The Picton Castle had already delayed its departure from Lunenburg, N.S., because of the weather, and they were under financial pressure to get going.

The crew was exhausted when the captain gave them all shots of rum during the storm, a practice the report called "questionable."

When Gainey was swept away by a large wave, two crew members at the helm immediately heard screams from the port side aft.

Gainey was briefly spotted in the water, but the crew was unable to maintain visual contact.

The search was called off several days later.

Picton Castle Capt. Daniel Moreland said yesterday he and the crew are "devastatingly sorry" for Gainey's loss.

PM defends possible deficit

ECONOMY Prime Minister Stephen Harper defended yesterday his government's about-face on the possibility of running a budget deficit next year, saying that sudden changes have made the economic future tough to predict.

During the campaign for the Oct. 14 election, he had ruled out budget deficits, but since his government's re-election, he and Finance Minister Jim Flaherty have allowed for the possibility of going into the red.

"The truth of the matter is that everything that's happened during — and particularly since — the election indicates that we will not be making any economic predictions in the near future," he said.

"If anything we've had more instability in various markets since the election campaign. The minister of finance, I know, is in the process of consulting with various forecasters and economists. They are giving us a very wide range of possible trajectories for the international economy, which have some consequences on Canada."

Economy worries U.S. troops

ELECTION Four years ago, U.S. troops in Iraq fretted about their buddies being killed in bomb blasts and wondered how the presidential race would affect the war.

Now, with violence in Iraq sharply down and the U.S. economy in danger, they are more worried about what the winner of the Nov. 4 election will do to rescue their savings and properties from economic collapse.

Psych tests for wannabe priests

VATICAN Candidates for the Catholic priesthood should undergo psychological tests to screen out heterosexuals unable to control their sexual urges and men with strong homosexual tendencies, the Vatican said yesterday.

Candidates face off over economic woes

Republican John McCain and Democrat Barack Obama duelled over the economy yesterday in the last stretch of their fierce fight for the White House, with McCain charging Obama would not do enough to rein in oil company profits.

McCain jumped on the record quarterly profits posted by Exxon Mobil, noting Obama had supported tax breaks for the oil industry in the 2005 energy bill and said, "When I'm president, we're not going to let that happen.

"Senator Obama voted for billions in corporate giveaways to the oil companies. I voted against it," McCain told supporters in Defiance, Ohio, as he tried to jump-start a comeback in a race that appears to be tipping toward Obama.

"If I'm elected president, we're going to stop sending $700 billion a year to pay for oil from countries that don't like us very much," McCain said. "We're going to drill off shore and we're going to drill now."

Obama leads McCain in national opinion polls and in key states like Florida and Ohio with five days of campaigning left before Tuesday's presidential election.

At a rally in Sarasota, Fla., Obama referred to yesterday's announcement that the U.S. economy had suffered its sharpest contraction in seven years and said the drop in gross domestic product reflected the failed Republican economic policies of McCain and President Bush.

CRTC says no to broadcast fees

Canada's television regulator denied an appeal by major broadcasters to begin charging carrying fees to cable and satellite companies, averting the potential for hefty hikes to Canadians' television bills.

Big broadcasters had complained to the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission that it was unfair that cable and satellite companies could air their signals without paying a so-called "fee for carriage."

Such fees would have likely been passed along to consumers — likely meaning a $2 to $10 jump in monthly bills.

"All of the major companies in the last few years have managed to consummate billion-dollar (advertising) deals," CRTC Chairman Konrad von Finckenstein said of the decision. "So clearly the industry is not on the verge of disappearing. So we denied the fee for carriage … there is just no economic rationale for doing it."

Women got a raw deal in U.S. election campaign

rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

This U.S. election cycle has been an ugly and divisive one, by any standards. As Canadians, we have the front rows on the bleacher seats for the big event, and get to see the blood and hear the broken bones much more intimately than most other countries. Still, we can't take part, but if anyone south of our border — or west of it, since Alaska has played a role of unprecedented prominence this time around — is listening, I have a suggestion to make, one offered with my tongue only slightly in cheek.

I am urging American women not to vote in this year's election. I realize that ignoring your franchise and rebuking the 19th Amendment — if only for one election — sounds absurd, especially in such a hotly contested election, but hear me out.

This has been an extraordinarily depressing election to witness, based on what I'm hearing from women on both sides of the political divide.

"I cannot predict who will win the presidential campaign," wrote women's rights advocate Helen McCaffrey in the Philadelphia Inquirer this week, "but I already know who will lose big: all women."

She describes a young male student at the community college where she teaches, wearing a "Sarah Palin Is A C__t" t-shirt "without shame or even consciousness of what he was doing." She recalls attending a Barack Obama rally where the mention of Palin's name "drew shouts of 'stone her.'" She laments that "instead of engaging Palin on the issues, critics attacked attributes that are specifically female. It is Hillary's pantsuit to the power of 10."

After this election, it's hard to imagine a bright woman in either party willingly allowing herself and her family to endure this gauntlet of character assassination.

It was hard to ignore the treatment Hillary Clinton got in the bitter fight for the Democratic nomination, almost entirely from members of the media and political classes that identified themselves as liberal, or as supporters of her party. After this election, it's hard to imagine a bright woman in either party willingly allowing herself and her family to endure this gauntlet of character assassination.

"Thank God for election 2008," lamented Wendy Button, a speechwriter for Clinton, John Edwards and Obama, on the Daily Beast political website.

"We can talk about the wardrobe and make-up even though most people don't understand the details about Senator Obama's plan with Iraq." A lifelong Democrat, she despairs at how her party has turned on two female candidates with such retrograde, belittling rhetoric.

It's neither likely nor perhaps even desirable, but if half of U.S. voters withdrew their franchise in protest, it would wreak havoc with pollsters and campaign operatives at the very least, and delegitimize a dispiriting and tainted election at best. It's a slap that would perhaps bring otherwise intelligent people back to their senses, and restore some decency to a process that has devolved into a shameful rebuke of a woman's right to participate in their country's political life.

Dead on arrival — or it's alive, it's alive!

Watching yesterday's cabinet shuffle, one can only wonder if Mr. Harper has built something that will actually come alive — like Pinocchio, the little wooden boy created by the carpenter Geppetto.

What people tend to focus on, of course, is Pinocchio's nose, which grows when he tells a fib. But that's just the underscore of the story. The real and most astonishing thing is that he comes alive — that he lives, talks, dances and actually gets to do things, like all the other real children.

So, yesterday the prime minister created his own piece of woodwork, building a fairly large cabinet, already assessed by pundits as "bloated," full of "underperformers and newcomers," "a recognition of the GTA," "more women have a say," — with a slight emphasis on continuity.

After all, in these unsteady times, ministers of finance and defence keep their posts because their portfolios are battlefields — and the last thing you want to change is leadership mid-fight.

But far more germane to many a scribe is this: up until this moment, a gaggle of cabinet ministers hasn't mattered worth a hill o' beans to most. It's been about one guy named Harper who called all the shots — all the time. And, while prime ministers have the right to do that, it became apparent this one — and his enablers — was going to dictate script and pull every string. Not to be trusted, except for a couple, cabinet ministers were like sea captains who were given fine ships and crews — and sent off to sea, never to be heard from again.

But, as the summer began, there were some staff changes in the prime minister's office: old guard communicators and policy chiefs were out, new, albeit experienced, folks from Ontario, in. And just before the election we actually got to see one or two cabinet ministers actually talk to the media — seemingly independently.

But it was the morning after the election that political observers noticed a real sea change. At his press conference, the PM looked and sounded humble, even co-operative. Pundits cocked their ears: there was something definitely there — and it wasn't just weariness. Could this be the beginning of something new? Was the Ice Man thawing; warming the chill from the way things were run before?

So that's what the smart people are really wondering about in the aftermath of this shuffle. Is there really going to be more open, consensus building, a less partisan and less vociferous government and House of Commons?

The only way to know is to watch whether these cabinet ministers actually come alive, like Pinocchio, and voice their own thoughts — or whether Mister Geppetto will keep pulling the strings so tight his puppets will wish they were put to sea.

THE SKINNY: After spotting the Florida Panthers a one-goal lead after two periods, the Ottawa Senators scored a pair of markers in the third period for their second win in a row.

THE WINNING GOAL: Chris Kelly picked a great time to score his first goal of the season. Kelly notched the game winner for Ottawa midway through the final period as he poked a loose puck past Panthers goalie Tomas Vokoun during a goalmouth scramble in front of the Panthers net.

THE OTHER SCORERS: Dany Heatley notched his sixth goal of the season on a set-up by Daniel Alfredsson to tie the game at 5:55 of the third period. Keith Ballard had scored the Panthers' goal on a power-play in the first period.

THE WINNING GOALIE: Sens goaltender Alex Auld made 25 stops for his third win of the season in his fourth consecutive start for Ottawa.

THE FIRST STAR: Auld was named the game's first star against Florida — the team that originally drafted him in 1999.

Dany Heatley is congratulated by Daniel Alfredsson after scoring against the Panthers during third period last night.

THE COMEBACK: For the first time this season, the Senators came back to win after a two-period deficit.

THE NEXT GAME: The Senators close out their four game road trip tomorrow night in Tampa against the Lightning.

Alfie re-ups with Sens

The Ottawa Senators signed captain and all-time leading scorer Daniel Alfredsson to a four-year contract extension yesterday with the Swede almost certain to finish his career in the Canadian capital. Media reports said the deal was worth $22 million to Alfredsson.

Alfredsson

"The Senators organization and the city of Ottawa have embraced both me and my family as part of this community," Alfredsson told reporters at a news conference.

"It's an exciting time for our family to know that we'll be able to spend the rest of my NHL career in Ottawa."

Alfredsson is the franchise leader in games played (861), goals (334), assists (522) and points (856). The 35-year-old right-winger has three goals and six assists in eight games this season. A five-time all-star, Alfredsson won the Calder Trophy as NHL rookie of the year in 1996 and helped Sweden to a gold medal at the 2006 Turin Olympics.

"Daniel is the type of person and player that we want to continue building this franchise around," said Ottawa general manager Bryan Murray.

"We are happy to have him here to lead our team towards the goal of bringing a Stanley Cup to Ottawa." REUTERS

Changeling inspiring

Changeling

Director: Clint Eastwood
Stars: Angelina Jolie, John Malkovich
Classification: 14A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕⊕

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

Shortly after the title dissolves from the screen at the beginning of Changeling, it's immediately followed by three words — a true story.

If you don't remind yourself of that over the next two-plus hours, you might find this drama somewhat overwrought.

Directed by legendary icon Clint Eastwood — who only gets better with age — Changeling tells the emotional journey of Christine Collins (Angelina Jolie), a single mother in 1920s Los Angeles who comes home to find her son missing.

Following weeks of searching relentlessly, the police suddenly show up with her child, reporters in tow. Great. Only there's a catch: It ain't him.

The problem is that in 1928, the corrupt LAPD had a horrendous public-relations dilemma, so some clod in the force thought it'd be a slick move to replace Collins' son with another kid, hoping she wouldn't notice.

When she obviously and very publicly does, the LAPD does the only thing it can: Make life hell for the poor mom.

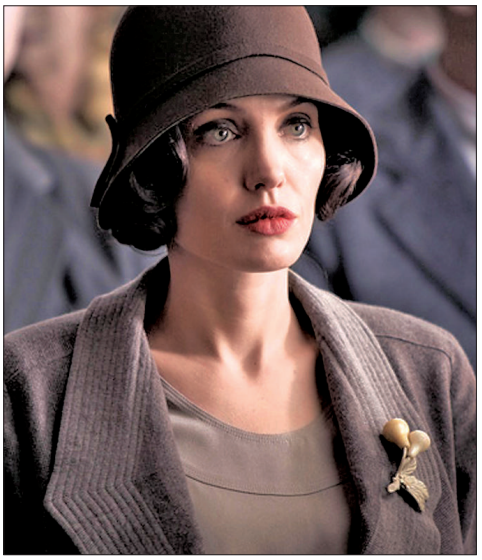
Now, what was it rappers NWA used to say about the LAPD again?

Jolie gives a striking, distraught performance of a woman in a time of excessive subservience, rising up against her persecutors "and the horse they rode in on." As pedestrian as those words read, she makes them sing.

Meanwhile, Eastwood creates a moody, authentic world here, capturing great performances and turning a seemingly diminutive tale into compelling drama. As bulky as this film is, its riveting story never tires, and more so, it inspires.

In today's political climate, it's no mistake that many films are decrying the power of institutions and heralding the characters that rise above them.

Who knew that at age 78, Eastwood was still a rebel?



Angelina Jolie delivers a striking performance in Changeling.

Zack and Miri sweet and raunchy

Zack and Miri Make a Porno

Director: Kevin Smith
Stars: Seth Rogan, Elizabeth Banks
Classification: 18A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Seth Rogan and Elizabeth Banks play the title duo in Kevin Smith's Zack and Miri Make a Porno.

REVIEW Zack And Miri Make A Porno hits screens amidst a sea of controversy. The initial poster was banned in America and several multiplexes are refusing to play the film … and all because the word "porno" is in the title.

If any of the offended parties actually watched the film, they would discover that it is actually a very sweet romantic comedy about two best friends discovering their love for one another. Granted they discover it while having sex on camera for a quick buck — but it is very sweet nonetheless.

There's only one man who could have made this movie and that's Kevin Smith. Ever since his inspirational micro-budget debut, Smith has been the reining master of raunchy dialogue-driven comedies-with-heart.

Over the last few years, the writer/director has seen his once controversial style enter the mainstream thanks to filmmaker Judd Apatow. But rather than be upset, Smith has welcomed members of the Apatow ensemble into his team. Seth Rogan, Elizabeth Banks, Justin Long, and Craig Robinson have joined Smith veterans Jason Mewes and Jeff Anderson to create one of the best movies of Smith's career.

Summarizing the plot is pointless because the title says it all. It's also a good litmus test. If the title makes you laugh you'll probably enjoy the movie. The film is every bit as raunchy and hilarious as you'd imagine.

Make no mistake; this is a silly R-rated comedy that certainly won't go down as one of the greatest films ever made. But the characters are so well drawn, the underlying message so sweet, and the jokes so consistently funny.

RocknRolla cool and fun

RocknRolla

Director: Guy Ritchie
Stars: Gerard Butler, Tom Wilkinson
Classification: 14A
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

REVIEW Man that Guy Ritchie just can't catch a break. In his hometown of London — where RocknRolla has already been released — critics have unfairly panned the British director's latest film.

It seems the central complaint with RocknRolla is that it's too similar to those ol' nuggets of cinematic yore. Like those acclaimed crime dramas, RocknRolla does explore a familiar criminal element of the London underground; namely those involved in a complex real estate scam gone wrong.

We have the hard-edged mobster (played to perfection by Tom Wilkinson), a Russian billionaire (Karl Roden), a petty street crook (Gerard Butler) and many other seedy characters.

Sure, a lot of the appeal is all flash and visual flair, and the overload of sub-plots does complicate matters, but one cannot overlook how fun the dialogue and double-crosses are. So what if RocknRolla may be familiar turf; if you miss the Guy Ritchie of the '90s, you will appreciate what you're in for.

Also in theatres

- Also opening this week is the horror film The Haunting of Molly Hartley. There are no pre-screenings of the movie, but read Monday's edition of Metro for a full review.

This Bond girl is 'different'

Olga Kurylenko's place in franchise history still to be written

Movie feature

RICK MCGINNIS
Metro Canada

Olga Kurylenko has joined a long line of iconic actresses who've assumed the mantle of Bond girl.

The Ukrainian born model made an impressive debut in a series of French films before being cast in Quantum Of Solace as Camille, a Colombian out for revenge after the death of her parents, a revenge that ends up complimenting Daniel Craig's Bond grieving quest to avenge the death of Vesper Lynd (Eva Green) at the end of Casino Royale.

What remains to be seen is whether Kurylenko will join the ranks of Bond co-stars such as Diana Rigg and Halle Berry for whom Bond meant merely a role, or disappear with Daniela Bianchi, Lois Chiles, Claudine Auger and Carey Lowell into Bond footnotes.

In either case, she'll have a unique place among the tiny minority of Bond co-stars who don't end up in bed with the British superspy.

"She's different," Kurylenko says about her Camille. "She's like a Bond in a female body. She's almost equal to him. What is nice is that in this film she has her own story — she exists without Bond. She has her own thing to do, her own mission. She's like his reflection."

As for Craig as Bond, Kurylenko has nothing but praise. "I thought he was one of the best Bonds. Everyone has their own opinion, but he's more believable. He's tough - you believe he can break your neck. They had to change, so he's a good one."

Olga Kurylenko joins Daniel Craig in Quantum of Solace.

"She's like a Bond in a female body. She's almost equal to him. What is nice is that in this film she has her own story — she exists without Bond."
Olga Kurylenko

Quantum Of Solace director Marc Forster came to Bond from a very different place. The Swiss director is better known for more intimate, even arty films such as The Kite Runner and Monster's Ball. He echoes Kurylenko's assessment of what she brought to Bond.

"I saw tapes from all over the world, beautiful women, but either they couldn't act in English, or they weren't real enough or didn't have any depth. And then I met 15 women in London, and I thought 3 or 4 were interesting, and I had them read with Daniel, and I thought Olga was the most truthful and would be a good mirror image for him."

As for Craig, Forster sees him as essential, and a key reason why he took on a film that even he thought was completely out of character for him.

"I think he just humanizes the character and grounds him. After Pierce Brosnan it was important to go a hundred and eighty degrees opposite to try and reinvent him. To just mimic Pierce Brosnan, at that point I think the franchise was going to become a bit of a farce. It had to go totally to the opposite."

Wain making his Hollywood directing debut with Role Models

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

FEATURE Writer/director David Wain has been an alternative comedy fixture for over a decade. After acting and writing on the '90s MTV series The State, he went on to direct such projects as Wet Hot American Summer and The Ten.

His latest directorial effort is Role Models — opening next week — stars Paul Rudd and Seann William Scott as a pair of underachievers who are forced to join a variation of the Big Brothers.

It's the first time that Wain has ever directed for Hollywood, something that he admits made him nervous. "I was really apprehensive to be honest with you," Wain told Metro. "I had this vision that I would be like Barton Fink. But in many ways I was surprised by how similar it was to independent filmmaking. My daily work schedule was the same. I was still focused finding the best way to tell the story onscreen. Even more so than in independent film where I had to wear so many different hats because there were fewer people working on it. In that way it freed me to focus more on directing."

Role Models is certainly the most conventional movie he's ever made, but Wain was still able to wedge in his subversive voice into the script and fill the cast with talented comedians, like the scene-stealing foul-mouthed youngster Bobb'e Thompson

Still, as with all of Wain's movies, most of the actors are familiar faces who he's collaborated with for years, some as far back as university.

"They're the guys who I banded together with when I was 18 years old and they also luckily happen to be the funniest people I know."

Voicing those animal crackers

What do Ben Stiller, Chris Rock and Cedric the Entertainer have in common? Well, if you guessed they all deliver the funniest lines in the new animated hit Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa, you'd only be partly right.

David Schwimmer, Jada Pinkett Smith, Ben Stiller and Chris Rock have returned to their voice-roles in Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa.

Returning to their respective vocal roles from 2005's huge family hit, Madagascar, those funnymen — along with no less than three other voice talents — all come from a stand-up comedy background.

"(Producers are) looking for somebody that can make whatever they write funny or funnier somehow," insists Cedric the Entertainer. "I think the idea is that (comedians) can at least bring it to life because that's the hardest part about it: (voicing) in a room, doing it by yourself with nobody else to bounce it off of."

It's true. Like most animated films, Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa – in theatres next Friday — recorded most of its performances separately. Sure, it sounds like an easy gig — you read your part, collect a cheque and go home — but as Ben Stiller attests, it's not that simple.

"I think the key is you want it to be fun," says the actor. "If you go (into the recording studio) and you're down or if you're low energy or you're not into it that day then it's not going to be a good session and you're probably going to have to come back."

This comedy is definitely not short on spirit. Stuck in Madagascar, Alex the lion (Stiller), Marty the zebra (Rock) and the rest of the Manhattan zoo-raised crew try to return home only to get as far as Africa, where they soon discover their roots.

As with the first film, the jokes are fast, furious and come from all angles – so all that comedic energy must've been an asset…or was it?

"They encourage ad-libbing and there's a lot of funny stuff in the script but at the same time (producers are) more concerned with the story," insists Rock.

"I remember the first time meeting with Jeffrey (Katzenberg – head of Dreamworks Animation) and I remember him saying, 'We're working on the story, we'll get the jokes when we get them,' and I was so, like, offended."

Rock relents with a laugh: "As I've gotten older and done more (movies), I'm like, 'The story is the hardest part; we will get the jokes when we get them.'"

Quote of the week

"I want to do the edgy independent movies, like (Leonardo) DiCaprio did, but you have to balance it out … it's about carving out your leading-man role. Fight Club? Yes! X-Men? Yes! All sorts of different films. American Beauty? Yes! I don't know if I could pull off a Kevin Spacey, but I'll try."

Beverly Hills Chihuahua

REVIEW These days, it seems Hollywood producers are all wondering the same thing: If my dog could speak, what would it say? Well, Beverly Hills Chihuahua is the latest talking animal flick to heed that query and — according to one cheeky chihuahua at least — the answer is, "Oh no she didn't!" Featuring the voices of Drew Barrymore, Andy Garcia and other celebs, Chihuahua is a harmless "tail" (Ha!) about a snooty, rich lapdog that gets lost in Mexico and must journey back to Rodeo Drive. Along the way, she encounters a mélange of muttering mutts and an annoying animated rat-iguana duo that, in the end, teach us life lessons.

High School Musical 3: Senior Year

●●●½

REVIEW It's very likely that only a handful of adults — those with children too young to drive at home — have seen the previous two High School Musical incarnations that follow the dancing and singing students of Albuquerque's Eastside High. This is the first in the series to be made for the big screen — the other entries were made for TV — and it is a much better visual experience for young viewers, with more singing and dancing then the previous two. Adults can actually attend the movie without too much fear. Sure, the storyline is very basic, and squeaky Mickey Mouse-clean — you may doze off occasionally — but there is great energy in this film.

Max Payne

●●●½

REVIEW Max Payne is another hit video game-turned-Hollywood blockbuster. As the title character, Mark Wahlberg is an angry, maverick cop who is determined to find the savages who killed his wife and child. Shirking his civic duty, Payne conspires with a sexy assassin — Mila Kunis of That '70s Show — and discovers a dark underworld that may be connected to otherworldly demons. This thriller follows suit in the respect that it certainly seems overly focused on Payne and his quest. By doing so, other aspects (the central plot twist for instance) are too obvious and unembellished. That said, Payne knows its limitations and makes no apologies; it has absolutely stunning choreography and brooding Wahlberg was made for this kind of role. Further, and maybe most importantly, this movie is big, brash and perhaps better than any other video-game adaptation out there.

Pride and Glory

REVIEW Filmmaker Gavin O'Connor (Miracle) better hope that fans of this summer's blockbuster The Incredible Hulk follow its lead actor Edward Norton over to his new film, Pride and Glory. Unfortunately, I seriously doubt most fanboys care much for a melodrama about a family of cops. Besides, there have been more flicks made about corrupt New York City cops than Dunkin' has donuts. In this one, Norton stars as Ray Tierney, a traumatized detective who returns to the force at the urging of his police chief father (Jon Voight) to investigate the mysterious murder of four of NYPD's finest. Exploring themes of loyalty and integrity, Ray is torn between his close-knit family and the NYPD, forced to confront his own pained morality. With powerful performances, a dark and melancholic tone, and a climactic fight scene that delivers the punches with, well, a punch, Pride and Glory may be all too familiar but it's a respectably intense ride nonetheless.

REVIEW Perhaps the most surprising aspect of Oliver Stone's impressive film is just how rounded of a portrayal he's made of George W. Bush. Make no mistake, Stone does not present Bush as a strong leader by any stretch of the imagination, but he does at least explain how he managed to make his many mistakes in a manner that seems plausible. Josh Brolin perfectly captures all of Bush's mannerisms without ever slipping into the realm of a Saturday Night Live impersonation. It's a truly exceptional piece of acting that solidifies Brolin's sudden rise to prominence in Hollywood. Similar glowing comments can be made about the entire cast including Richard Dreyfus' subtly malicious Dick Cheney and Thandie Newton's chameleon-like transformation into Condoleezza Rice.

Kele's heartbreak and Intimacy

New disc let Bloc Party frontman dish on split

IAN NATHANSON
for Metro Canada

Whatever reputed breakdown occurred between Kele Okereke and his former significant other in late 2007, the singer-guitarist frontman for Bloc Party needed an outlet to vent his feelings on the matter.

"Translucent and sun bleached skin, when did you get so L.A./how can you desert me after all we've been through/Stuck on a dream that somewhere it's better/You'll be the one missing out," Okereke sings on the electronica-meets-new wave One Month Off, from the British outfit's third full-lengther, Intimacy.

"A lot of stuff went on in the past year with my personal life that really had a huge effect on me," Okereke tells Metro, though tight-lipped on the details.

"I didn't want to try and think too much about what I was saying — I wanted to write from an emotional perspective … just get it out there and move on to the next thing.

"But in writing songs for this record, I want people to see this not only about a relationship breakup but also a celebration of a love — about falling in love and being in love. It doesn't always have to be negative."

Besides, there has been enough negative-leaning talk about Okereke — from British media speculation about his sexuality to a reported backstage dust-up between the 27-year-old and The Sex Pistols' Johnny Rotten during a summer music festival in Spain — that it almost overshadows Bloc Party's more significant changes of late.

First, Okereke, guitarist Russell Lissack, bassist Gordon Moakes and drummer Matt Tong have ditched the traditional indie-rock stylings of their 2005 success story, Silent Alarm, and 2007 follow-up, A Weekend In The City. For Intimacy, Bloc Party veers into electronica-based territory and experimentation with Okereke's vocals — though maintaining Tong's fierce backbeats.

"In the 21st century, rock music should be taking more from electronica," Okereke says. "I know many bands will tell you the best records have been made between the 1950s and the 1970s. But with all the new technology available, why not have rock music embrace something a bit newer?"

Second, the band has opted to follow what's becoming a recent trend in the industry by releasing the new album digitally in August, two months ahead of this past Tuesday's physical CD release.

Bloc Party frontman Kele Okereke, foreground, says recording new album, Intimacy, allowed him to vent about a breakup. The album was released in stores earlier this week.

"I remember being a 16-year-old and how it was such a big deal when I bought a record by a band I liked and everyone else bought the same record and we were all talking about that record at the same time," Okereke says. "Now that we've built up an international fan base, why not just deliver a record to our fans at the same time, rather than have somebody leak out the record online long before it comes out?"

MTV strikes Beatles video game deal

MTV Networks announced yesterday a deal to use songs by The Beatles in a custom video game similar to its popular Rock Band video, marking the groundbreaking band's first major plunge into digital music.

There is no set release date or sale price for the game, but it is due to be ready for a worldwide release in about a year, said MTV Networks and The Beatles' Apple, which handles the affairs of the group that broke up in 1970 after revolutionizing rock and roll in the 1960s.

The companies released few details about the game

The Beatles

— which will be a custom video and not a Rock Band brand game — saying it is still in development. They would only say that it will be an "interactive music making game."

Rock Band lets fans play plastic guitars along with music on TV screens.

Jeff Jones, chief executive of Apple Corps Ltd, said while he could not say how many songs would be used in the custom game, it would use music from throughout The Beatles' career.

"This game will take you on a journey from The Beatles first album Please, Please Me all the way through the last album Abbey Road. It will span samples of the whole catalogue all the way through," Jones said. REUTERS

It's been a busy couple of weeks with a lot of stuff dropping into my inbox, into my mailbox or mysteriously across my desks (I have several offices and thus several desks.) Like the annual raking of the leaves, I thought it was time for some cleaning up.

• The Last Pogo DVD: Finally, someone has issued a proper visual document of one of the most infamous events in Canadian rock history: The "riot" at the Horseshoe Tavern on Dec. 1, 1978. Every music fan should have a copy (thelastpogo.net).

• They Want Us to Buy Vinyl Again? Listening to actual vinyl records is on the rise again, which as precipitated a series of vinyl re-releases by everyone from Led Zeppelin to the Sex Pistols. Let's see: they got us buying vinyl, then converted us to tapes, told us to upgrade to CDs, wanted us to move to digital downloads ... and now we're back to vinyl? Talk about the circle of life.

• Battle of the Divas: While all the attention has gone to the cage match between new albums from AC/DC and Guns N' Roses, there's a catfight set for next week when Britney Spears, Beyoncé, Leona Lewis and Christina Aguilera all release new albums. Too bad Mariah Carey is sitting this one out.

Madonna apparently made Guy Ritchie leave home to eat hamburgers.

• Madonna's Divorce: Rumours were that Madge wouldn't allow anything other than steamed fish and chicken to be served in the house. If Guy wanted a burger, he had to go down to The Punchbowl, his local pub. Don't feel bad for him, though. Part of the hushed-up settled involves him getting Ashcombe House, their $20 million, 1,200 acre estate in Wiltshire. He might even get $20 million more just so he keeps his mouth shut. Madonna, meanwhile, is worth at least $600 million US. She's fine.

• Johnny Rotten Butter: The former singer of the Sex Pistols is starring in a British TV commercial for Country Life Butter. No, I'm not making that up.

• Since It's Halloween ... A poll out this week on the 20 creepiest celebrities named Marilyn Manson at number 1 with a 76 per cent "creep factor." Michael Jackson finished second and Courtney Love ranked 11th. Keith Richards was 14th.

• Op-Ed Bono: He's got a new gig writing columns for the New York Times. This just goes to show that if I can get a column, anyone can.

buy or download these:

• Pink, Funhouse: The recently divorced pop star warns, "I'm going to get in trouble. I want to start a fight," on debut single So What. Thank goodness Pink makes poking fun at our celebrity obsessed culture sound so fun.

• The Clash, Live at Shea Stadium: On this 1982 recording the best punk band of all time may have been merely opening for the Who, but they still whipped the crowd into a frenzy with a barrage of classics like London Calling and Rock the Casbah among others.

• Lordi, Deadache: This costume-clad heavy metal outfit from Finland takes glam rock to the next ghoulish level. Full of monster riffs of tortured '80s metal and songs like Man Skin Boots and Raise Hell In Heaven, Deadache might be the ideal soundtrack to your Halloween party.

Strong signs of Life On Mars in reworked show

IntelleVision

Rick McGinnis
rick.mcginnis@metronews.ca

BACK TO LIFE After following its demolition derby production history over the course of the summer, and imagining its prime-time premiere as an event somewhere between the opening weekend of Gigli and the second season of Joey, I was pleasantly surprised by ABC's reworking of the BBC's time-travelling cop series Life On Mars. It's turned into a decent bit of TV that might actually attract an audience in this season's lepper's parade of shows.

Besides Harvey Keitel, who manages to be both ubiquitous and watchable — try saying the same thing about Jimmy Smits or Jude Law a few years ago — one of the show's real pleasures is Michael Imperioli's take on the role of Ray Carling. As played by Dean Andrews on the British show, Carling was a relentless thug, too dim to ever take the place of his hero, DCI Gene Hunt, but with an endearing, sometimes dog-like side that redeemed him.

Imperioli's Carling is much smarter, a wisecrack machine loaded to the handlebar moustache with musky '70s masculinity. "When this came along I really liked the character, I really liked the story, I liked the ideas they had for casting, and I liked being able to stay home with my family," Imperioli told the New York Times this week. The paper also speculated on the show's rocky production history, which saw an almost total recasting of the show after a pilot was filmed, and a move from Los Angeles to New York City for both the setting and production.

"It is rare that a show gets piloted twice," said Gary Newman, co-chairman of 20th Century Fox Television, one of the show's producers. "I think a big part of it was, you look at the version shot in Los Angeles, and it just didn't feel like 1973; it wasn't authentic. The wardrobe, the hair, the music, the buildings — it honestly is a kind of an amazing reproduction of the era."

Run through my handy television execution decoding ring, that means that the people behind the L.A. version had better have friends at the other networks, and that the New York crew had better have a few too if the show doesn't end up getting renewed. I'm quite happy to tuck into my meal of crow at this point, if only in the hope that the success of the ABC version will finally get a DVD box set of the BBC original on shelves here.

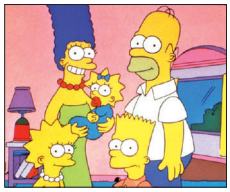
American election blankets networks

Mythbusters
Air date: Sunday
Network: Discovery

EVERYBODY HAS Bond fever this fall, including the guys on Mythbusters, who'll be testing the probability of 007 gadgets and stunts, including the bullet-deflecting watch, the propane-tank fireball and the legendary speedboat jump in Live and Let Die. Let me guess — cool, but not a chance in hell.

MuchMusic Video on Trial
Air date: Monday
Network: MuchMusic

THIS IS — and I can't believe I'm saying this — the 100th Video on Trial episode, and it will reunite its panel of comic judges and take a look back over three years of snarky crap about the music industry, a target as broad and wide as a battleship and as easy to hit.



Simpsons Treehouse of Horror
Air date: Sunday
Network: Fox

THE 19TH ANNUAL Simpsons Halloween horror spoof show returns with a trio of satires. This year's pop culture targets include the hit TV show Mad Men, Transformers and a long-overdue shot at the Charlie Brown specials.

Rick's TVPicks

Election Night
Air date: Tuesday
Network: All U.S. networks

FRANKLY, I'm sick to death of the almost endless election cycle south of the border, but since this race has been more vicious than most, there'll probably be some actual tension in the air as the results start rolling in.

Big laughs from small town boy

GetOutThere

Kim Mannix Vermette
kim.mannixvermette@metronews.ca

Growing up in the small northern locale of Wawa in Ontario, Pete Zedlacher found himself with a whole lot of nothing to do.

There was no movie theatre. No nightlife at all really, and everyone knew everyone else.

But the stand-up comedian, and lone Canadian representative on the current Just For Laughs Comedy Tour, says life in Wawa was fodder for a lot of future ha-has. "We had nothing going on up there, so we really relied on each other for entertainment," says Zedlacher.

"I grew up with very funny guys who taught me how to be funny too. They are now working in mines and mills and I guess I was the guy who said 'I need to get out of here.' "

He had two choices after high school — pursue engineering at the University of Toronto, or head to the Big Apple to pursue his dream of being an actor and comedian.

The pull of New York City was strong, and soon the small town boy found himself in the big, big city, too afraid to even make eye contact with people on the street for the first few months he lived there.

He attended the American Musical and Dramatic Academy, and enjoyed acting. But once Zedlacher gave stand-up comedy a shot, he knew he'd found his niche.

details

- The Just for Laughs Comedy Tour stops at the National Arts Centre Saturday, with shows at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Tickets range from $35.50 to $52.50 and can be purchased at the NAC box office, by calling 613-755-1111 or through ticketmaster.ca.

"When I first jumped on a stage to try it I would say I was somewhere between mediocre and good, but what I loved were the immediate results," he explains.

"With stand-up it's you and a microphone. You're the star, writer, director, and it's a control freak's dream. You put it all out there, and sometimes it doesn't work, but when you get laughs you know you've created something good."

He's been getting laughs across Canada and internationally for well over a decade now, but Zedlacher says this current tour — dubbed International because of it's line-up of comics from the U.S. and Europe — is the best he's ever been a part of.

Zedlacher is joined on the 18-city, cross-Canada tour by Danny Bhoy from Scotland, Ireland's David O'Doherty, Hal Cruttenden from England and American host Finesse Mitchell.

But does being the sole Canuck mean Zedlacher gets the biggest laughs?

"I definitely have the home-ice advantage, and the audiences cheer me on when I get on stage, but I think they're also saying 'you'd better be funny Canadian guy, because this has been one damn good show so far.' "

Art after death

KIM MANNIX VERMETTE
kim.mannixvermette@metronews.ca

Gerald Trottier's art is still alive in the city of Ottawa.

It's displayed in bold colour in Carleton University's Tory Building. It's visible in numerous city churches, in the form of ornate sculptural crucifixes and Stations of the Cross.

And for the first time in two decades, a retrospective of his work is on display at Cube Gallery, where 46 Trottier pieces aim to represent the life of the important Ottawa artist, who died in 2004.

Curated by Cube owner Don Monet, with the assistance of Trottier's family, the show gives a glimpse into why the artist is considered a master of natural and human landscapes.

Though Trottier was highly regarded and sought after from the 1950s on, he began exhibiting his work less and less frequently in the 1980s and 1990s.

And even though they are intimately acquainted with all the works on display, Trottier's family members are thrilled to give his art another chance to be appreciated.

"Our family is always drawn together in a more palpable reminder of what our family was around his art and what it is today because of his life and work," explains Marc Trottier, Gerald's son.

"It's a proud time for our family."

Monet says the exhibit is perhaps the most important one he's curated since opening the gallery in 2005.

When asked what it is about Trottier's work that excites him, Monet says, "he had an uncanny ability to withhold nothing in his explorations of the human condition and human spirit."

"I have watched as a number of people enter the gallery and have been so struck, so overwhelmed by the work on the walls that they literally have to take a seat to catch their breath and absorb it all."

Marc Trottier — who considers himself not only Gerald's son, but also his best friend — is also a respected artist and an expert on his father's work.

The significance of Trottier's large portraits and self-portraits, he says, is that they allow viewers to see themselves in the work.

When he speaks of Trottier's impact, he imagines what Gerald himself would've said.

"We often say that works of art are about feelings, whereas for Gerald they were more about making. Dad has often said, and this is not an exclusive thought to him, that 'art is the right reason for things to be made'. I always liked that."

Moon Frye and Goldberg renew their vows

Actress Soleil Moon Frye and her husband, producer Jason Goldberg, renewed their vows at their Hollywood Hills, Calif., home on Saturday after 10 years of marriage. PEOPLE.COM

Protesters mob Olsens' event

CONTROVERSY A book-signing for fans of twin actresses Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen took an ugly turn when they were bombarded by a legion of angry protesters wearing mocking masks of the pair, imdb.com reports.

Fans lined up to meet the 22-year-old moguls, who were recently celebrating the release of their new coffee table book, Influence.

But the pair were stunned to find animal-rights activists shouting outside the event — part of a campaign launched by People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) against the stars for their fashion choices.

"People who still wear fur haven't woken up to the fact that a big, dead animal on your back makes you look like a troll," a PETA spokesperson tells WENN. "Compassionate fashionistas know that real beauty comes from the heart."

Biel regrets photos

IMAGE Actress Jessica Biel regrets being pressured into topless shots for a men's magazine, imdb.com reports.

Biel was reportedly persuaded to pose for the racy pictures in 2000 to shed her angelic image. But she admits she now regrets agreeing to the photo shoot.

"It was supposed to show me being sexier and more mature," she says. "The idea was: Look at me — I am a woman, growing up. I had male managers at the time, who were really excited about the photo shoot. The truth is, though, I was in way over my head. I remember calling my dad and saying: 'I screwed up. I went too far and did not stand up for myself.'"

Reid wants to start a family

FAMILY Actress Tara Reid is reportedly desperate to start a family, hinting that she is trying for kids with current boyfriend Julien Jarmoune, imdb.com reports.

The pair began dating after setting up Reid's new clothing line together.

And she doesn't want to wait to settle down and start a family, telling People magazine, "I'm ready to make a family. I want two children, a boy and a girl. And a traditional wedding, the big dress, the princess thing. What every little girl dreams of."

Victoria to pose in underwear

PEOPLE Victoria Beckham is set to follow in the footsteps of her soccer ace husband David when she strips down to her underwear to model for fashion house Armani, imdb.com reports.

The former Spice Girl will debut as the "world-wide testimonial" for Emporio Armani Women's underwear in the spring/summer 2009 campaign.

The collaboration comes months after David Beckham stopped traffic by posing scantily clad for the designer. His ad was unveiled on a massive billboard in California last June.

"Who better than Victoria Beckham to launch our new global Emporio Armani underwear campaign?" Giorgio Armani said in a statement.

Long tired of dating celebs

RELATIONSHIPS Justin Long has sworn off dating another celebrity because he hated having his relationship with ex-girlfriend Drew Barrymore splashed out across the tabloids, imdb.com reports.

The actor ended his year-long, high-profile romance with Barrymore in July.

Gossips have since linked him to another Hollywood starlet, Kirsten Dunst, but Long insists he's not interested in another A-list romance.

"It's not something I would ever consider a good thing," he tells People magazine.

Dion wants to try for another child

FAMILY Celine Dion will start trying for a second child when she completes her world tour, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The singer and her husband Rene Angelil welcomed son Rene-Charles in 2001 after undergoing fertility treatments.

Seven years later, Dion wants to attempt the process again, but she won't be too disappointed if she fails to conceive the second time around.

Winehouse is not losing her voice

RUMOUR Singer Amy Winehouse has shot down rumours she could lose her voice because of drug use, insisting she is working on her new album, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

Winehouse was said to have returned to rehab last weekend, but it later emerged she had been treated at the London Clinic for a respiratory problem.

Joe O'Neill

Joe's take on celebrities

I don't enjoy thinking about the Olsen Twins, but the crusading pinheads at PETA spent a few hours yesterday protesting the fact that the girls exercise their prerogative to wear, gasp, fur. You know PETA, the group that does its part to end cruelty to animals by showing us pictures of naked models and sending out such moral paragons like Heather Mills McCartney to publicly shame celebrities who choose to wear fur, eat meat, smile or tell them that the Easter Bunny doesn't exist.

PETA's targeting of the mini-moguls doesn't end with public demonstrations, though. They've also created an online game featuring characters named Hairy Kate and Trashly Trollsen, displaying the kind of rapier wit that always seems to grace people who are the most earnest about the least important things.

Now that the PETA loonies are stepping up their anti-Olsen onslaught, I'm no longer going to be able to perversely enjoy the sensation of my stomach turning as I watch their wretched performances in New York Minute, It Takes Two or Full House reruns.

I'm going to have to sympathize with them.

Recipe of the day

Poached Salmon with Dill Sauce

INGREDIENTS:
4 fresh or frozen and thawed salmon or halibut steaks, 3/4 inch thick (about 6 oz / 175 g each)
1 cup (250 mL) dry white wine or low-sodium chicken broth
1 small yellow onion, thickly sliced
2 lemon slices
4 sprigs parsley
4 whole black peppercorns

DILL SAUCE:
1 tbsp (15 mL) butter or margarine
1 tbsp (15 mL) all-purpose flour
2 tsp (10 mL) finely chopped fresh dill or 3/4 tsp (4 mL) dried dill weed
½ tsp (2 mL) sugar
1/8 tsp (0.5 mL) salt
1 large egg yolk, lightly beaten
1 tsp (5 mL) lemon juice

METHOD:
1. Rinse fish and pat dry. In a large skillet, combine the wine, onion, lemon slices, parsley and peppercorns. Bring to a boil. Arrange salmon in a single layer in wine mixture. Bring back to a boil. Lower the heat and simmer, covered, for 5 to 8 minutes or until fish flakes when tested with a fork. With a slotted spatula, carefully remove salmon from the skillet; keep warm. Strain and reserve 1 cup of the cooking liquid.
2. To prepare dill sauce, in a small saucepan, melt butter over moderate heat. Whisk in flour, dill, sugar and salt, and cook for 1 minute or until bubbly. Add reserved cooking liquid. Cook, whisking constantly, until mixture starts to thicken. Slowly stir about 1/2 cup (125 mL) of the hot mixture into egg yolk, then return this mixture to the saucepan. Cook, stirring constantly, for 1 to 2 minutes or until mixture thickens (do not boil). Stir in lemon juice.
3. Spoon some of the dill sauce over the salmon. Serve with remaining sauce.
